

FIXED INCOME HOUSE VIEW

JUNE 2022

- The Monetary Policy Committee has highlighted rising inflation and is taking actions to achieve 'the medium-term target for CPI inflation of 4% within a band of +/- 2 per cent, while supporting growth.'
- The RBI MPC has unanimously maintained its accommodative stance while focusing on imminent withdrawal of accommodative stance. It is likely to move into a neutral stance in upcoming announcements.
- RBI has given importance to inflation management over GDP growth rates as it does not want the economy to slow down drastically. RBI feels lower inflation is required to support macro economic stability and ensure durable growth in the economy.
- RBI's support for the government's borrowing program is expected to be incrementally lower in the coming months. This is balanced with an intention to remove excess liquidity from the system over a multi-year period.
- RBI is expected to take measures to smoothen upward movement of the yield curve.

- In its off-cycle meeting on 4th May, the MPC Increase the policy repo rate under the liquidity adjustment facility (LAF) by 40 bps to 4.40% with immediate effect. This has effectively reversed the excessively accommodative stance taken during the Pandemic.
- Consequently, the standing deposit facility (SDF) rate stands adjusted to 4.15% and the marginal standing facility (MSF) rate and the Bank Rate to 4.65%.
- The CRR was raised by 50 bps from 4% to 4.50%. This is likely to drain Rs.0.9 trillion of excess liquidity from the system.
- There is increasing fiscal and monetary coordination between Government and RBI to control inflation. Government has cut petrol/ Diesel excise duty, levied export duty on steel, reduce duties on coal imports to zero. The government has banned the export of wheat now to make augment domestic supply and control food inflation.

- The government borrowing program for the financial year worth ~14.31 Lakh crores was announced, of which ~60% will be executed in the first half of FY23. The government wants to front load its capex due to its multiplier effect on the economy
- RBI will limit interventions in the market to control yields as such actions would be contradictory to their objective of reducing liquidity.
- RBI holds ~USD 50 billion of forward dollar purchases over the next 2 years, which gives it some independence to follow its own monetary policy. Current forex reserve is ~$592 billion.
- RBI is unlikely to aggressively reduce liquidity through forex, but with increasing volatility and Current Acct. Deficit, it may look to elongate the maturity of the swaps it holds. When a central bank takes an aggressive position to fight inflation through policies such as rate hikes, the currency tends to strengthen.

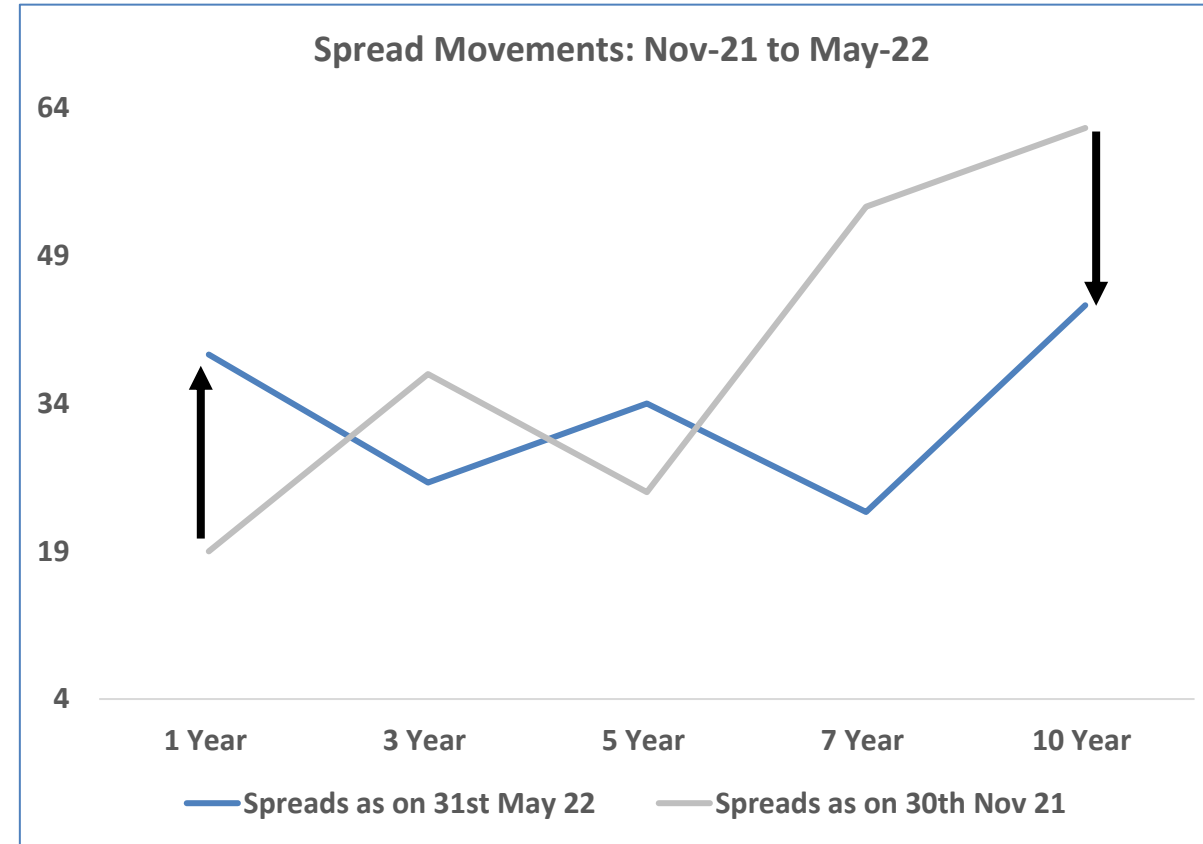

- In the beginning of FY22, the RBI injected liquidity in the markets in order to encourage economic growth.
- RBI has been taking steps to reduce systemic liquidity in order to control inflation. Systemic liquidity has reduced from a peak of ~9 lakh crores in September-21 to ~3 lakh crores in May-22.

Rates	As on 4 th May 2022	As on 8 th April 2022	As on 22 nd May 2020	As on 27 th March 2020

10 Year	7.40%	6.33%	6.02%	107	138

- Yields rose across maturities in the past 6 months and 1 Year periods.
- The rise was greatest in the 6 months to 3 year segments.

	Corporate Yields	G-Sec Yields
Expected Movement	Expect corporate curve to shift upwards due to rate hikes and lower systemic liquidity.	Expected to move up due to higher government borrowing program and rate hikes.
Short End Rates	Likely to see upward movement due to lowered systemic liquidity and rate hike. CD yields may rise as banks resume issuing papers as overnight liquidity moves to match SDF levels.	May have some upward pressure on yields as the high borrowing program means government may be compelled to borrow in the short end also.
Long End Rates	Corporate bond yields may see an uptick due to increase supply of papers in the medium term, combined with lower liquidity.	Long end of the yield curve expected to move up due to huge borrowing program and rate hikes. Expect that 10-year yields could be in the 7.30-7.50% range. If credit demand increases, yields could go higher.
RBI Actions	RBI action of liquidity withdrawal could lead to upward pressure on yields. Lack of market intervention could also lead to yields drifting upwards.

- RBI is expected to cumulatively hike Repo rate by 200 bps over coming quarters. It is expected to maintain accommodative stance and focus on withdrawal of accommodation. Interest upcycle is likely to last for coming 12- 18 months.
- RBI is expected to continue to reduce excess liquidity over a multi-year period. Inflation is likely to remain sticky for an extended period.
- Government is likely to borrow a majority of its stated requirement for the year in the coming months.
- This is likely to put upward pressure on yields across the curve, with the shorter end rising to a greater extent.
- Overall, we remain neutral on debt markets and expect accruals to be major driver for return generation for next few months.
- We will continue to focus on the quality of securities across portfolios.

- Playing it Safe: Selective on credit.
- Lower Maturity: Investors should look to invest in funds having average maturity of 1-2 years and lower to capture accrual returns and minimize mark to market losses in rising interest rate environment.
- Higher Quality: We advise investors to invest in high quality portfolio depending on the time horizon to get the underlying accrual of the portfolios.
- Floating Rate Funds could be used for investment horizons of 6 months and above.
- Short Duration Funds, Banking & PSU Debt Funds and Corporate Bond Funds may be preferred for investment horizons of 1-2-years.
- For short term parking of surplus funds, investors can look at Ultra Short Term Funds, Money Market Funds and Low Duration Debt Funds
